■ The Honhar Ladki Program Model

An education sponsorship and mentoring programme to support adolescent girls from rural and urban slums. Besides enrollment and sponsorship, the programme takes a multi-faceted approach to ensure parental commitment, achieve gender equality and reduce girls' drop-out rates by:

- Developing half-yearly progress reports
- Arranging periodic parent-teacher meetings
- Organising monthly sessions where IDF staff talk with teachers about attendance and performance
- Providing mentors for the girls to help them become independent and develop self-confidence
- Organising awareness sessions for girls & their mothers to educate them on health and hygiene, menstruation and nutrition issues for their well-being.

"I feel proud that I have become the first person in my family to complete 12th standard, and I have a dream to become a teacher. Thanks, IDF, for helping me to see my dreams and sponsoring my education."

- Sangeeta, on passing 12th grade and awaiting college admission

About Us

The Indian Dreams Foundation (IDF) is dedicated to educate, empower and develop underprivileged communities by raising awareness on pressing issues such as the importance of education and health.

After its establishment as an NGO on January 24th 2005, IDF has relentlessly worked in the spheres of education, health, and women empowerment in underprivileged communities. IDF strongly believes in the power of education as a tool of empowerment and leverages it to break stereotypes
